Beloved people of St. John’s,

My second summer in law school, I worked as an associate at a big law firm in Los Angeles. I was full of nervous energy and cranked out a huge volume of work. One of the partners who was mentoring me that summer kept telling me: “Less is more, Lisa.” He was trying to tell me that doing a few things really well was better than blindly motoring through a lot of work. He was telling me to focus what I did based on intention and prioritizing, and then I could work as hard as I wanted.

In Luke’s gospel, at the very beginning of Jesus’ ministry, he declares his manifesto to the people of his hometown in Nazareth. “The Spirit of the Lord is upon me,” he declares to them, with no small amount of chutzpah. “The Spirit has anointed me to bring good news to the poor, release to the captives, recovery of sight to the blind, freedom for the oppressed, to declare the year of God’s favor.” (See Luke 4:14-21). Jesus has a very particular ministry: he is saying yes to these things, which necessarily means he is also saying no to a lot of other things.

At St. John’s, we are entering a period of joyful listening and discernment. We already know much about what we’ve felt called to do as a community, as expressed in our mission statement:

- We celebrate the gift of Christian community and welcome all, without distinction, to share the joy and pain of life’s passages. We commit ourselves to personal and spiritual maturity, both traditional and innovative worship, the healthy nurturing of children, and reaching out, beyond the Church, seeking Christ in all persons.

As followers of the way of Jesus, we know that Jesus’ mission is our own; and we affirm the active presence of God’s Spirit in our midst—which means that we assume that God is up to something at St. John’s today, in continued support of what the mission of Jesus has been since the beginning. Given our DNA as a community and the gifts and burdens of the people currently part of St. John’s, and given what is happening in the world around us, what might God be inviting us to be part of?

How are we part of the flow of God’s story—the “Beloved Community” shown in scriptures, made manifest in Jesus, and needed in the world today? What do you personally bring—your gifts and your burdens, your resources and your stories? How does our community’s mission statement track with Jesus’ manifesto in Luke? What are our community’s “yeses” and “nos”?

One of the ways we can begin to answer these questions is to look for “pockets of energy” here at St. John’s. Where is there a sense of life, vitality or flow? What captures our collective imagination, passion and concern? Where do we see parallels between our story and the Great Story of Judeo-Christian tradition? As you move through our community, begin to ask yourself these questions, alone and with others. Over time, we’ll create spaces to do this as a community. I can’t wait to see where God’s Spirit leads us.

Faithfully,

Lisa
Part of St. John’s “Keeping Faith” 2017 capital campaign included tithing 10% of the funds raised for a special Centennial Fund for Social Justice. With roughly $2 million in total capital campaign pledges, the Centennial Fund could have approximately $200,000 to use, once all pledges are paid.

Led by co-chairs Mark Lindberg and Brigitte Parenteau, the Fund’s goal is to expand St. John’s vision for service to the community through new, local initiatives that will both stimulate and challenge us in our service to others. A core value of the Fund is to fuse grantmaking with efforts to develop or enhance relationships with organizations in the community, rather than simply act as a transactional donor.

Since its inception in 2018, the Centennial Fund Committee has investigated opportunities with organizations that represent a mixture of issues and places across the city of Minneapolis. After a series of site visits with several initiatives, the Committee invited leaders from a handful of organizations to participate in a deeper, second conversation to better understand the opportunities for engagement. At this point, there are three organizations that meet many of the goals and interests of the Centennial Fund. The Committee will continue to consult with the Vestry and Justice & Service Committee as important sources of information and inspiration. The Committee anticipates initial recommendations sometime in 2019.

In addition to the bigger picture conversations taking place, there has been a youth-led grantmaking track. Nine of St. John’s high-school youth are identifying, investigating and prioritizing potential nonprofits that address areas such as: economic justice, climate change, mental health, immigration and discrimination. This group is meeting monthly and hopes to share its recommendations for four grants of up to $5,000 each in the next few months.

If you have questions, please reach out to any of the Fund Committee members listed below.

Centennial Fund Committee members:
Cathy Bouggy, Kesha Brennom, Ali Halley, Dick Howard, Mark Lindberg, Brigitte Parenteau, Chris Robinson, Roger Rose, Heidi Schaefer, Kari Slade

Youth-led Fund members:

3rd Space: TEC (Teens Encounter Christ) and Church

When I went to TEC, at first I was a bit skeptical. I didn’t know what it was going to be like and I thought it would be a very churchy thing. But, I was excited. So, when I got there, I was utterly amazed. So many people were so welcoming there, and so open about everything. Over the course of the weekend, it became not just a one-off experience, but more. I really made friends with the people there – we really got to know each other. It was just such an amazing experience. And definitely, I felt much more connected to God and the church after it.

I feel like – TEC specifically, but church in general – it’s not only a place where there is a community. Church is a place for me where there are other people of all different ages, and they are in my community, and they know me to an extent, and that’s very different than at home where I know everyone very specifically. And school is a very judgmental place. But at TEC, I had peers who didn’t know me necessarily, but it felt like they have known me for so long and I’ve known them for so long. It’s a very non-judgmental place. That, in itself, is different from school because it’s so judgmental.

People’s attitudes are just so different at TEC. When I went, I knew some people from school and from church, of course. But people acted very differently than I’d see them in different situations. It wasn’t like they were on their best behavior – but they were all much more open to seeing different things and they weren’t quite as stressed. At TEC, we can all be ourselves and relax because there are so many people we don’t know, so many people who aren’t present in the other parts of our lives, and we can get to know each other in a new way.

Go to TEC. You might think you can know what it’s like, but you can’t really know until you go. You can’t make pre-judgments from anyone else’s experience. Every time you go, it will be a different group of people, but it’s more about what you can get individually from being around this group of people and how it will change you each time. Because it will change each time, and so will you.

Fin Hunsicker
Beloved St. John’s community,

You may have noticed that the seven practices of the “Way of Love” have been showing up in homilies, adult forums, children’s chapel and in other locations in and around St. John’s and the broader Episcopal Church. These practices - turn, learn, pray, worship, bless, go, rest— capture the wisdom of 21 centuries of learning about what it is to follow the way of Jesus.

During Lent, you’ll be invited to use “Living the Way of Love: a 40-day devotional”. This booklet offers short daily reflections and opportunities to engage one of these seven practices. They are currently available in the church office for $12 (scholarships available upon request). Please pick one up in time to begin on Ash Wednesday, March 6!
